

The book was found

Punishment For Sale: Private Prisons, Big Business, And The Incarceration Binge (Issues In Crime And Justice)

Synopsis

Punishment for Sale is the definitive modern history of private prisons, told through social, economic and political frames. The authors explore the origin of the ideas of modern privatization, the establishment of private prisons, and the efforts to keep expanding in the face of problems and bad publicity. The book provides a balanced telling of the story of private prisons and the resistance they engendered within the context of criminology, and it is intended for supplemental use in undergraduate and graduate courses in criminology, social problems, and race & ethnicity.

Book Information

Series: Issues in Crime and Justice

Paperback: 216 pages

Publisher: Rowman & Littlefield Publishers (January 16, 2010)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 1442201738

ISBN-13: 978-1442201736

Product Dimensions: 6.1 x 0.6 x 9.1 inches

Shipping Weight: 13.6 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 4.7 out of 5 stars 6 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #218,761 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #177 in Books > Business & Money > Processes & Infrastructure > Government & Business #373 in Books > Textbooks > Law > Criminal Law #456 in Books > Politics & Social Sciences > Social Sciences > Violence in Society

Customer Reviews

Selman and Leighton have presented a cogent summary of the connection between the free market mentality that dominates American society and the use of imprisonment as a solution to the problem of crime. As the authors show so clearly, while crime may not pay, punishment certainly does, as it is a very profitable enterprise. The methodology is unique, as they review Congressional testimony, Securities and Exchange Commission filings, and the contracts of Corrections Corporation of America and the GEO Group have made with state and local governments. This book will leave its mark and future researchers on the American penal system will have to use it as a major source. (Randall G. Shelden, University of Nevada-Las Vegas, author of Our Punitive Society: Race, Class, Gender and Punishment in America) With a reputation for pursuing social justice, Selman and Leighton expose the realities and consequences of privatized prisons. Punishment for Sale deserves to become standard reading for professors, students, and activists concerned about the expanding neoliberal campaign to outsource criminal justice (Michael Welch, Rutgers University) The dramatic growth of the US prison population in recent times has been an especially noteworthy and troublesome development within the criminal justice system. Although some criminologists believe that the high level of incarceration has contributed to the declining conventional crime rate since the early 1990s, other criminologists have documented some of the harmful consequences of this trend. Criminologists Selman and Leighton (both, Eastern Michigan Univ.) focus upon the role of private prisons in 'America's incarceration binge.' Applying an analytical framework that comes out of critical criminology, the authors systematically explore the Reagan era origins of the increasing shift to the privatization of corrections, the key factors contributing to its expansion, and the consequences. The pursuit of profit in a 'prison-industrial' complex does little to stop crime, but greatly amplifies injustices imposed upon disadvantaged segments of society. The authors show private prison industry executives to be exorbitantly compensated and accordingly highly motivated to promote by any means possible including harsh laws directed at immigrants and drug users the number of convicted offenders sent to prison. An important and timely book. Highly recommended (CHOICE, November 2010) An important book that sheds new light. Using Congressional testimony, SEC filings, and copies of actual contracts obtained through the Freedom of Information Act, Punishment for Sale documents the heedless profiteering of neo-liberal prison firms that fails taxpayers, criminal offenders and the American people. The explicit class analysis offered here, documents how the AIG-style mentality of corporate America has once again capitalized upon our refusal to honestly address the sources of crime, preferring instead, to profit handsomely from its existence. As Selman and Leighton so aptly put it: "In this case, the rich get richer by way of the poor getting prison." Required reading. (Michael Hallett, University of North Florida) The dramatic growth of the US prison population in recent times has been an especially noteworthy and troublesome development within the criminal justice system. Although some criminologists believe that the high level of incarceration has contributed to the declining conventional crime rate since the early 1990s, other criminologists have documented some of the harmful consequences of this trend. Criminologists Selman and Leighton (both, Eastern Michigan Univ.) focus upon the role of private prisons in 'America's incarceration binge.' Applying an analytical framework that comes out of critical criminology, the authors systematically explore the Reagan era origins of the increasing shift to the privatization of corrections, the key factors contributing to its expansion, and the consequences. The pursuit of profit in a 'prison-industrial' complex does little to stop crime, but greatly amplifies injustices imposed upon disadvantaged segments of society. The authors show private prison industry executives to be exorbitantly compensated and accordingly highly motivated to promote by any means possibleâ€•including harsh laws directed at immigrants and drug usersâ€•the number of convicted offenders sent to prison. An important and timely book. Highly recommended. (CHOICE, November 2010)

Donna Selman is assistant professor of criminology and criminal justice at Eastern Michigan University. She has contributed to the book Battleground: Criminal Justice. Paul Leighton is associate professor of criminology and criminal justice at Eastern Michigan University. He is a co-author of Class, Race, Gender, and Crime, and is the founder of StopViolence.com, a resource for non-repressive responses to violence prevention.

This gives a first hand, documented account of how the entire industry evolved, and better yet, it explains what can and should be done about it~!Every state legislator in every state should have a copy of this book~!

Donna Selman and Paul Leighton provide an interesting insight into the drivers (political and business) of prison privatisation and its lack of relationship with crime. For anyone examining the issue of private prisons, and their inadequacies, as well as the links between politicians and private prison operators (inclusive the lobbying by the latter for lengthier sentences and more prisoners that are motivated by self-interest in terms of corporate growth), this is a useful analysis of the vested interests involved. The picture painted is one where 200 years of penal reform have been overturned causing an apparent reversion to the 18th century workhouse model!

GREAT book- I have had the privilege to be taught by both Donna & Paul and finally got my hands on this fantastic chunk of knowledge :) Highly recommended for Criminology & Criminal Justice students, or really anyone who is interested in the legal system, or who simply want to be 'in the know'. It's easy, it's enlightening and it's worth your time.

Great book!! I have looked for a book that's well researched and has the theory of my beliefs and I found it. As an instructor and health advocate this material augments educational objectives. Mass incarceration harms the community. Thank you

I'm doing a Criminology degree and this book is prefect for studyng the privatization of prisons!

shape your understanding of prison system

Download to continue reading...

Punishment for Sale: Private Prisons, Big Business, and the Incarceration Binge (Issues in Crime and Justice) Binge Eating: Cure Binge Eating, Overcome Food Addiction, and Rid Your Life of Eating Disorders (Binge Eating Cure Series Book 1) Incarceration Nations: A Journey to Justice in Prisons Around the World The Color of Justice: Race, Ethnicity, and Crime in America (The Wadsworth Contemporary Issues in Crime and Justice Series) The Invisible Woman: Gender, Crime, and Justice (Wadsworth Contemporary Issues in Crime and Justice) Mass Incarceration on Trial: A Remarkable Court Decision and the Future of Prisons in America Prisoners of War and Military Prisons: Personal Narratives of Experience in the Prisons at Richmond, Danville, Macon, Andersonville, Savannah, Millen, Charleston, and Columbia (Classic Reprint) Unusually Cruel: Prisons, Punishment, and the Real American Exceptionalism American Prisons: An Annotated Bibliography (Bibliographies of the History of Crime and Criminal Justice,) The Brain over Binge Recovery Guide: A Simple and Personalized Plan for Ending Bulimia and Binge Eating Disorder How to Have Your Cake and Your Skinny Jeans Too: Stop Binge Eating, Overeating and Dieting For Good Get the Naturally Thin Body You Crave From the Inside Out (Binge Eating Solution Book 1) Overcoming Binge Eating, Second Edition: The Proven Program to Learn Why You Binge and How You Can Stop The Binge Code: 7 Unconventional Keys to End Binge Eating and Lose Excess Weight (+Bonus Audios) The Binge Code: 7 Unconventional Keys to End Binge Eating & Lose Excess Weight Binge Eating Cure: Cure Binge Eating with Intermittent Fasting How Do Judges Decide?: The Search for Fairness and Justice in Punishment (Key Questions for Criminal Justice) Capital Offenses: Business Crime and Punishment in America's Corporate Age Marked: Race, Crime, and Finding Work in an Era of Mass Incarceration Imprisoning Communities: How Mass Incarceration Makes Disadvantaged Neighborhoods Worse (Studies in Crime and Public Policy) From the War on Poverty to the War on Crime: The Making of Mass Incarceration in America

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help