I love this bible. It may be the most beautiful book I've ever owned. I am new to the bible journaling/illustrated faith community and this bible works perfectly! The pages are surprisingly strong enough for my very wet water color painting. I place a piece of card stock behind the page I'm working on so that the moisture doesn't seep through to the other pages. I'm so very pleased with this bible, it's very well made and will last through the generations as I plan to pass this down to my children. I look forward to buying another Crossway journaling bible once I fill this one up. This has been such a great way for me to get the word into my spirit, I'm excited for what our Poppa God will show me through this form of worship. "

I LOVE this Bible! First, the pages are nice and thick so that I am able to use my Tim Holtz Distress Markers with no bleed thru...and I erase A LOT, (I use Pilot's Frixion Erasable Pens) so much so that I am shocked that I haven't ripped through the pages! Second, of course is all the additional space! I am able to draw little illustrations that are so much fun to see when flipping in search of something. The one thing I don't love is the microscopic point size used for the text! Not for everyday reading, for sure! I just uploaded a quick video of what I have done in the first week of owning my ESV Journal Bible...please, check it out!

I wasn't planning on writing a review of this bible, but I thought, to save someone else from the same issue I had with it (and to prevent a restocking fee), I would at least put my take on it out there. I have been researching and looking for a journaling bible for a little while now. I found this one and fell in love with the look of it. It functions exactly as I would want, it is the single column and has the wide margins, which is what I was looking for. But upon receiving it and putting it together (which literally just involves putting the leather strap through a couple of pre-punched holes on the cover and tying a knot) I realized that the functionality of this bible with the long leather strap, while it looks beautiful, is cumbersome and would distract (at least me) from using it to the fullest. So, the very thing that attracted me to it, is what made me end up returning it. As far as the bible itself, it is beautiful. I thought the words were printed at a legible size and the font it pleasing. The pages seem thick enough to write or illustrate on without a lot of bleed through. The leather on the inside is a little rough and is noticeably genuine leather, which will end up wearing beautifully, I think. It comes with a pen holder in the back, which is very useful for this bible and it's intended purpose. I am just sad that I am unable to love the leather strap as much as I had hoped. And without it, I fear the flap would just be in the way. I've included a few pictures, it really is a beautiful bible and if you can get over my issue with it, I think you will love it!

I've upload a photo of the bible text with a penny for scale. I hated to return it, but I just couldn't read this bible due to the very very small typeface used. I'm not so old I need a large print editin, but I am pretty sure even folks who use reading glasses would have trouble with it. The cover is nice, firm but flexible and the paper just the right thickness that text on the underside won't show though. It was very Moleskine-esque with the elastic strap to keep it closed. If not for the small print, I'd be keepin this one!

I love this bible. Like the other reviewers have said, the font is small, but not that small. I wish the pages were bigger so the book could be thinner. I like the moleskeine-ness of this bible. The pages hold up well to paint and matte medium.

Â I absolutely love everything about the ESV Single Column Journaling Bible from Crossway. From the hardcover and elastic strap, to the margin size and readability, it is by far my favorite Bible. And the price is nice, too!

This is such a gorgeous Bible! It is my second journal Bible, but sadly my old one's spine cracked from so much use. (It had been a hard cover one). While pricier than most journal Bibles, the quality is immeasurable. It is a solid book, feels great to touch and hold, and the pages are nice and smooth for writing. I decided this time around to simplify my writing within the Bible, using only a black ball point pen (inkjoy by papermate). It writes beautifully on the pages without smearing or much "ghosting"- the pages are thick enough for writing and would probably support some light watercolor use, too. (I used watercolor in the previous Bible which had thinner pages). One of my favorite features of this journal Bible is the small elastic pen holder inside the fold of the leather. So convenient to keep your favorite pen! This Bible makes me even more excited to dig into the Word, and I would highly recommend!

I bought three of these--one for each of my children so that I can write in them as my children grow. The leather is VERY soft and luxurious. It feels like a treasure to hold, which is appropriate. The leather has a natural look, so it has variances in the color as the picture shows. It looks rugged and worn, but is obviously new. The pages are thin and cream-colored, and the print is small. It is exactly as I expected and just what I wanted.
