Jenny Hendy has an Honours degree in Classical Botany. She worked as a researcher and writer for one of Britain's leading gardening magazines and now works as an author, lecturer and radio broadcaster as well as running a thriving garden design consultancy. She also works with under elevens, running nature and gardening workshops. Her previous books include Creative Ideas for Garden Structures and Creative Ideas for Walls, Fences, Hedges & Boundaries, both published by Southwater.

Lots of fun, inexpensive projects to do with kids. My 6yr old son was thrilled with the pictures and quickly selected several projects. They are all very inexpensive; several are almost free if you already have the tools, such as hand clippers, scissors, milk jugs, pretty pebbles you can find loose on the ground at Wal-Mart or Home Depot, by the displays of landscaping rocks, etc. They are easy to do on a rainy day or a day it's too cold/hot to be outside playing. The book is divided into sections based on seasons. Autumn will tell you how to make a sanctuary for bees to winter over. Spring tells how to assist birds line their nests. Highly recommended if you love nature. The instructions are easy to understand, based on materials easily obtained (like plaster of Paris) and are projects a regular person would WANT to build. No instructions for mostly useless projects (like how to help a koala bear build a nest.) We love it.

My nieces both are learning from their parents, the importance of self sustainability. Growing some of their own foods, as well as raising chickens and rabbits for food, keeping bees for honey, forging edible wild plants and berries, etc. They love the book I got them. Both have a little garden they started. My nieces are 8 and 10 years old, and this book is easy for them to follow.

My 7 yr old son and I are looking forward to doing some of the projects this spring. The book is gorgeous and filled with cool ideas!

Gardening Projects For Kids This book has all of the fun ideas that I was looking for in planning my projects for my lesson plans. Am also using them with my senior citizens.

This us a great success!! My four year old great grandson, is finding the projects exciting and fun. Thank You.

Great book. I purchased this for my nieces. The projects in the book are things that would interest kids and adults alike. Not too difficult.

Another great teaching tool for little gardeners, making gardening fun, not a job.

This is a darling book for doing activities for gardening with children.
