Customer Reviews

"This book is essential reading for informing anyone sitting in classroom seats or church pews about how Catholic social thought applies to timely issues, and for inviting and inspiring them to act accordingly." --Tobias Winright, Saint Louis University
"Brady provides an invaluable introduction to the Catholic social tradition, coupling updated extracts from encyclicals and other primary texts with lucid historical and theological analysis. His engaging, thematic treatment spans the development of the Catholic social tradition, its moral methodology, and its implications for social living in today's complex world." --Kristin E. Heyer, Boston College
"Brady gives readers a comprehensive view of Catholic social thought in times of urgent need for discernment on social issues old and new, particularly with its inclusion of Pope Francis' 'Evangelii Gaudium' and 'Laudato Si'." --Massimo Faggioli, Villanova University

Bernard V. Brady is professor of moral theology and chair of the theology department at the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, MN. He is the author of several books: Christian Love, Be Good and Do Good (Orbis Books), and The Moral Bond of Community (Georgetown). --This text refers to

I am currently using this as a text for an upper-level undergraduate course and have found it to be phenomenal. Brady offers a thematic overview of Catholic Social Teaching, which alone would make for an excellent book. What makes it even better is that he has given substantial portions of a number of the major CST documents. He has done an excellent job of striking the balance between offering excerpts that are far too brief and requiring students to read the entirety of each encyclical (or CST document). The excerpts are substantial and offer students a genuine sense of what is going on in the larger document, but they are not overwhelming. This is a book that anyone with any interest in CST should own and anyone teaching CST to undergraduates should use.

pretty straight forward
